Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.This illustrated, colour book is appropriate for teenagers and young people who are strong readers. Hannah has shared her real-life teenage diaries to help other young people understand what it is like to be abused by someone you care about. She describes her experience of reporting the abuse to police and the legal process that followed. She explains what abuse is, and gives clear advice for readers who themselves need help, or have a friend who does. She also writes of the gains she has made in her recovery since speaking with counsellors about her experiences. The book contains beautiful paintings donated by Sarah Millicent Elliott. It was written with input from Australian counselling, child protection and education experts.
