The object of every pupil should be to acquire the knowledge imparted by the tutor, not in words only, but in ideas; so that the information gained should not be of a superficial character - a mere catalogue of scientific names - but an acquaintance with the phenomena of Nature, and a distinct and comprehensive idea of the laws which regulate them. Montaigne aptly remarked that a tutor should not he continually thundering instruction into the ears of his pupil as if he were pouring it through a funnel; but, after having put the lad, like a young horse, on a trot before him, to observe his paces, and see what lie is able to perform, should, according to the extent of his capacity, induce him to taste, to distinguish, and to find out things for himself;...
