Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Morphology and Biology of Some Turbellaria From the Mississippi Basin: With Three Plates Woodworth (1897) and Stringer (1909, 1913) have published descriptions Of five new species from Illinois and Nebraska. Eleven other forms, found also in the eastern states, have been reported from a few localities in Illinois, Nebraska, Michigan, and Wisconsin, but these are all. That some species, at least, are present in great numbers is evident from the various collections for experimental studies. The whole Mississippi valley region with its lakes and almost numberless ponds furnishes conditions in many respects ideal for such types, and their existence will sooner or later be demonstrated. In fact, both Planaria and Rhabdocoelida are of much more common occurrence than is generally supposed and for several reasons are especially valuable for study. First, they are available as living reproducing animals throughout the year. Then, they are good for experimental work since they illustrate a somewhat primitive phylum, one in which the body structure is very different from that commonly encountered. Well adapted to such studies by their simplicity and great vitality, they have come to be the classic specimens employed both for elementary experiment and for complicated investigation. The free-living method of life, together with the simple fundamental anatomy, when compared with the specialized and much changed condition of the nearly related parasitic worms, shows clearly the variations possible and actually brought about by a different mode of life. As a whole, the group is of more than ordinary interest. Always considered of no importance economically, their possible relation to other forms has been overlooked, so that only by chance have their habits of parasitism and voracious feeding been discovered,...
