ANNALES AGRONOMIQUES (5)

RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 40 pages. LC Number: KF26 . L2725 2006b OCLC Number: (OCoLC)124078845 Subject: Hospitals -- Emergency services -- Utilization -- United States. Excerpt: . . . nged with redesigning the healthcare delivery system in this country, that, in fact, we take into account what it is that emergency rooms are there to do, who it is they are there to serve, and that we learn from, in some cases, those experiences that were not done necessarily right, to make sure in the future, we dont do them that way again. The Institute of Medicine has recently issued three ground- breaking reports about the system of emergency care in this country. The reports explored the systems strength, its limitations, and its future challenges; described a desired vision for the system; and recommended the strategies for achieving this vision. I, personally, look forward to hearing from each and every one of you regarding your experiences. I know all of you have different experiences to share. Please know that what you tell this subcommittee today really will start our review of where we should go legislatively and how this fits in with what I think will be a very challenging time as we define what the delivery system for healthcare in the future looks like for every American. At this point, let me take the opportunity to do a brief introduction for our witnesses today. Our first witness is Dr. Richard Blum, from West Virginia University School of Medicine, where he is an Associate Professor of Emergency Medicine and Pediatrics. Dr. Blum is also the President of the American College of Emergency Physicians. He also served on the colleges pediatric committee. Next, we will hear from Nancy Bonalumi. Shes the Director of...
